14. The same accusation is forthcoming when one expresses the idea that the United States and its culture are exceptional to all others.
15. Current Progressive opposition to the Constitution is based on its opposition to the restraints it places on the federal government which are considered to be intolerant with the exception of the "equal protection" phrase in the Fourteenth Amendment.
16. Restraint on the federal debt and annual budget is considered intolerant since if everyone paid his fair share, then there would be plenty of money to spread around and in the end all would be equal economically.¹
17. The results of each of these areas of desired equality are disastrous, but the problems created solicit no shame from their proponents.
18. Removal of restraint on social mores has resulted in an upsurge of sexual deviancy that threatens the stability of the divine institutions of marriage and family.
19. A behavior born from the merger of women's liberation and tolerance is the current practice called a "hook up." The negative impact this has had on the lives of so many today is described in this article by Dennis Prager:

Feminism taught that there are no significant natural differences between men and women. Therefore, it is not unique to male nature to want to have sex with many partners.

One result is that instead of trying to find a potential husband, young women are under feminist pressure to show that they couldn't care less about forming an exclusive relationship with a man. And this provides another reason for her to engage in non-emotional, commitment-free sex.

(Another) reason for the hookup culture is the radical secularization of the college campus. The concept of the holy is dead at American campuses, and without the notion of the holy it is very difficult to make the case for minimizing, let alone avoiding, non-marital sex. Sex, which every great religion seeks to channel into marriage, has no such role in secular thinking. The only issues for students to be aware of when it comes to sex are health and consent. Beyond those two issues, there is not a single reason not to have sex with many people.

Feminist teaching about male-female sameness; feminist teaching that women will derive their greatest meaning from career, not from marriage and family; and the complete removal of religious values and teaching from the college campus are, "leaving a generation unhappy, sexually unfulfilled and confused about intimacy."²

¹ "Modern socialism is the politics of envy. The socialist knows that there are not enough rich people to support all the poor people of this world. He knows that government programs of wealth redistribution cannot uplift the vast majority of men. But that doesn't convince him to abandon socialism. He likes socialism because he thinks it will make it impossible for the 'wealth-poverty gap' to exist; not because the poor have risen but because the rich have been pulled down to the level of the poor" (Gary North, Successful Investing in the Age of Envy, 2d ed. [Waterbury, VT: Dominion Press, 1983]).

20. Beginning in kindergarten and continuing for the next thirteen impressionable years, progressive ideology programs the consciences of children to acquiesce to the trends of the sin nature rather than deny them.
21. Therefore a large percentage of young people today place no restraint on their sin natures and take no responsibility for their actions.
22. This is reflected by the conspicuous absence of shame.
23. It is honorable to deny self for the good of others and society, but even more so when in compliance with the requirements of the Word of God.
24. Therefore, such people are the subject of the phrase in Ephesians 5:18, "excluded (apallotriōō) from the life of God because of the ignorance that is in them."
25. Their ignorance is ἄγνοια (áгноia): "ignorance which leads to mistaken conduct." What this word tells us is that children who have been propagandized from early youth are simply behaving in ways that they have been taught by adults. They are guilty of committing sins they have been led to believe are acceptable behaviors.
26. Their souls have been damaged by this and the negative ramifications will affect their lives in tragic ways. Yet they are not alone in the transgression. The Progressive propagandists are also held accountable before the judgment bar of God:

Matthew 18:6 - Whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in Me to stumble, it would be better for him to have a heavy millstone hung around his neck, and to be drowned in the depth of the sea.
